

Clayton's Shed

Written by Jason Blackschleger

Copyright (c) 2025-2026

Third Draft

jay.blackschleger@gmail.com

INT. IOWA FARMHOUSE - DAY

Two 7-year-old boys, LEO and CAL, are looking out the window at a red shed on the hill across the village.

EXT. CLAYTON'S SHED - NIGHT

We see Trish (8) sneaking up to the shed, trying to peek through a window.

LEO (V.O.)
Why do you think half the girls never make it out of Old Clayton's shed?

INTERCUT - FARMHOUSE/SHED

A door opens behind the boys. Leo's mom, HELEN, heard them.

CAL
Dunno, I was told not to ask. My brother went last year. Won't speak.

Trish's mouth is GRABBED by an old hand, her scream CUT OFF.

HELEN (V.O.)
Have you seen Trish? Her mother says she didn't come home last night.

Leo runs up to Helen, shaking and tugging on her dress.

LEO
Was it Clayton? Will he get us, Mom?

HELEN Get you? Clayton is a kind soul. It's just tradition to go into the shed at eight years old. Come, I'll show you.

INT. JENKINS SHED - LATER

Helen opens the door to show Leo and Cal what's inside:
nothing but a mop and a table. She closes the door again.

LEO (V.O.)
But Mom, where do the other girls go?

At the center of the shed, one floorboard looks different from the others. Newer. Larger. Perhaps... wide enough to fit a child in? It rises, CREAKS, as if breathing.

HELEN (V.O.)
Boys aren't allowed to ask.